THE ETS COMPASS

POINTING YOU IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

FAITH | FAMILY | COMMUNITY SERVICE | TECHNOLOGY

How are your thoughts influencing your future?

I was recently listening to a message about thoughts that people have and how someone can easily get caught in their own thoughts. I feel there may be some of you who struggle with holding so strongly onto regret, that you don't realize you are missing THIS moment.

Some of you may find yourselves staying busy by thinking about people who may have left you, without realizing that you're not able to receive the love of the ones who have stayed. It's time for you to hold some new thoughts! While you may not be able to control every thought you may have, you CAN control which thoughts you hold onto.

The bible says in Romans 12:2, "Do not conform to the pattern of this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your mind. Then you will be able to test and approve what God's will is--his good, pleasing and perfect will".

I challenge you today to make an intentional effort towards surety that the thoughts you are holding are new, good, and pleasant. Thoughts that will allow you to be present in this very moment. Start your day in prayer and if you find yourself struggling to control your thoughts, turn to God, and ask for help. There is nothing too complicated for Him. He will come through for you.

Keep your personal Faith First.
Be blessed in all you do and say.

~Amy

Core Value: Trust

One of the most important factors in a successful endeavor is support. ETS Solutions recognizes the extravagant impact that support and guidance can have within a team - and even more-so, within a community. This is why we dedicate so much of our time, energy, and focus towards the businesses we partner and work with.

One of our main objectives every day is to strengthen and solidify the trust we hold within our relationships, allowing those we work with to relinquish any feelings of uncertainty involving their technology solutions. We recognize the importance of varied communication that is dependent on the needs of others. Whether we're breaking bread together or meeting online, we strive to uphold our integrity: honest, informative, and direct.

Introducing: Diane Francis

Join us in celebrating the arrival of another great team member: our Director of Technology Consulting, Diane Francis! Diane was born and raised in New York, but has resided in Atlanta for most of her life with her husband Jim, daughter Olivia, son Luke and their Great Dane, Moses. She loves spending time outdoors and with her family. She came to ETS with several years of experience in the telecommunications industry, having worked with a range of clients from small, single-location companies to large, multi-location companies with a global presence. One of her favorite technologies to work with is point-to-point wireless solutions. She's most excited about working with a new team and new partners, who already feel like family.

User Experience: ProjectX

It is with hopeful and useful intent that technology continues to progress. In these instances of technological evolution, it's only logical that the more outdated forms of technology are laid to rest.

We've attempted to keep our community and readers informed about the future of POTS (Plain Old Telephone System) lines - or lack thereof. While your technology provider may not come knocking on your door to forcefully steal away the copper lines required for POTS, the likelihood of experiencing elevated cost to upkeep your technology is very high.

Despite cost to maintain, there is also a notable difference in the features associated with technology powered by copper wires - i.e. physical barrier limitations, failure points, capacity - than those of others, such as fiber.

While POTS lines may not become completely expelled in the near future, they will certainly impact the businesses that employ them noticeably in cost, efficiency, and modernity.

Contact ETS Solutions for your free assessment of technology today to ensure your business is running at it's most elevated performance in every aspect.
